The Vanguard

Taste and learn about the new generation of wines under the 'avant-garde' banner. The revival of ancient practices in the new world. The New Old World. You will understand terms like 'bright', 'natural', 'orange wine', 'smashable', 'crunchy', 'cool-climate'.

The Classic

Travel to the more classic world, where wines are representative of their varietal qualities. Get what you would expect with a Cabernet from Western Australia or a Pinot Noir from Burgundy.

The Blind

Challenge each other by choosing to go for a blind tasting. See how good your friends are at identifying the wine, the grape, the region, the vintage and even the producer. The selection will be made based on the more classic wines and styles with a few new world wines thrown into the mix.

This one is Liinaa's favourite thing to do!

The Local

There is no better way to immerse yourself into South Australian wines than to book a tasting with our Sommelier.

We have a diverse collection of all the classics to the progressive wines, ranging from back vintage Rockford or Rusden wines to fresh wines from the likes of Ochota Barrels, natural wines from Tom Shobbrook and Lucy Margaux.

The Henriques & Henriques Extra Reserve are 15 year old and the best of the kind. Madeira is the world's longest lived wine and can express the most incisive characters along with exceptional complexity.

Sercial, Verdelho, Bual and Malvasia are the four grape varieies used to make Madeira. Sercial is the driest of them all, the Verdelho getting slightly off dry but still with racy acidity. A great aperitif!

The Bual is sweeter but remains fresh and lively. Caramel, fruit tart, dried fruits and more amber in colour. Full bodied and richer.

The Malvasia is the sweetest with honey notes, nutty flavours and a beautiful woody undertone. A dessert wine and, simply a great way to complete a delicious dinner any day..

OLD WORLD

CHAMPAGNE

A Synopsis...

It is fair to say that, given the popularity and the amount of wine consumed from Champagne, it is probably one of the most misunderstood regions. Because artists in the early 1900's, like Alfons Mucha and Toulouse-Lautrec, were hired by Champagne houses to depict the wine as a celebratory beverage, it has long been considered a party drink.

Reality is Champagne is much more serious than that. The region is very intricate with sub regions that give a remarkable sense of place to the wines. A few great minds have written books to explain why it is more than a celebratory drink.

Robert Walters, winemaker and author, depicts an entirely different world from what is commonly perceived with his book 'Bursting Bubbles'. The other person who I think has done some amazing work for Champagne in Australia is South Australian Kaaren Palmer, with her book 'Champagne: A tasting journey'

More and more Champagne producers are making single vineyard vintage wines with no dosage (a mix of sugar and wine). Let's just say that it is like Burgundy but with bubbles.

NEGOCIANTS VERSUS RECOLTANTS

The two main things to understand about Champagne is whether the wine is made by a Negociant Manipulant (NM) or a Recoltant Manipulant (RM), also known as Grower Champagne. A NM is a house that buys grapes from growers and produce a consistent non-vintage champagne with vintage grande cuvees and a Prestige cuvee on special years. Examples, Louis Roederer with their Prestige cuvee Cristal and Moet & Chandon with their Prestige cuvee Dom Perignon.

A RM is when the grower makes his/her own wine from their own estate. The Grower Champagne nurture their vines and grapes on the property and therefore has more control on the quality of the fruit. I find these Champagnes to be soulful, intense with lots of poise, reflecting a more much precise expression of the soil, style and vintage.

You will find that some of the vintage Grower Champagne will be served in large Riedel Pinot glasses. You are meant to swirl the glass and enjoy the aromas on the nose like you would for a Grand Cru Burgundy. A classic flute cannot give you that enjoyment. Be prepared to see that some bottles might even need decanting.

This section will explore Champagne in its many facets. The wines are categorised by Negotiants and Recoltants as well as region.

"This is a wicked fizzy drink. All the class of upmarket, fancy sparkling from that region northwest of Jura. It's got rich perfume of brioche, honeycomb, sea spray, red fruits and citrus. The palate prickles with bristling bubbles, shows cut of just-ripe green apply acidity, offers ripe citrus and a crunch of honeycomb. Some oxidative notes chime in for interest, toasty, mealy, nutty. There's lots going on, but most of all the drinkability is through the roof. Unreal."

'I never really thought of the western regions as a potentially high quality producer of Riesling. We certainly know about the stunning Chardonnay and Cabernet wines but when I visited Western Australia during Wine Australia's Somms of the World trip, I was marvelled at the diversity of landscape and wines being produced beyond the Margaret River. The Frankland Estate Poison Hill is a single vineyard Riesling of outstanding quality.

The expression on the nose is that of white flowers blossoming in spring. The freshness of the wine is splendid. its aromatic components and acidity strikes a remarkable balance. Limey, lemon curd, some mineral undercuts, excellent focus and a length that puts Naomi Campbell's legs to shame.'

When we talk about German riesling we think of how sweet it is, what's often forgotten is the fact that riesling is high in acidity and this balances the sugar to make this stunning, refreshing, complex wine. Joh Jos Prüm is one of the most iconic German riesling producers, having been in operation since 1911 the family itself has been in the region for over 400 years.

The Jamsheed Sauvignon Blanc is a star. Incredibly interesting with some creamy and piney notes and none of the common Sauvignon grape pyrazines.

There is quite a remarkable finesse but also a taut line of minerality that shines through and lifts this wine to an unprecedented level. It hails from this rare and special site in the Yarra Valley, where it is dry grown on red clay loam over bluestone rocks. An Australian gem!

One of my top favourite grape varieties is Chenin Blanc. It is not as widely known as Chardonnay and Riesling perhaps, because it is not as widely planted in Australia. But it is king, or queen shall I say, in the Loire region of France and in South Africa.

Like Riesling, it is playful and indulgent; it comes in many attires: sparkling, dry, oxidative and sweet. it is a wine that can be drunk young or that can age for a surprisingly long time, even as a dry white, which you cannot achieve with Chardonnay or most other white varieties. it can adapt to a wide variety of taste, expresses terroir really well, has high acid and can be mineral. Anyone who loves wine, loves a Chenin Blanc.

If you enjoy the textures of Pinot Gris, you could fall in love with Roussette de Savoie. The grape variety is Altesse and is unique to the beautiful alpine region of Savoie, just on the Swiss border. With Dupasquier's style, you will be delighted with voluptuous mouthfeel and aromas of white flowers, hay and honeycomb.

A blend of the native grapes Petit and Gros Manseng, Courbu, the very rare Camaralet and Lauzet. These last two rare varieties add body and spice to the wine. This exceptional cuvee expresses a depth from out of this world, guided by a fine mineral streak and very precise winemaking.

Let yourself be besotted by the aromas as you discover the wine in the glass. The palate is of remarkable purity, balanced between the softness of honey, the lift of citrus and the freshness of grapefruit, you will also find notes of stewed nectarines.

		From clay soils (which are not as rich or dense as those of Les Bruyeres) with blue marl and limestone, this is Stéphane's most expressive and elegant Vin Jaune. The high elevated, En Spois vineyard lends itself to producing some of the more textural and nuanced expressions of Savagnin where the flavours of curry leaf, unroasted nuts and lemon curd are reserved yet perfectly balanced against Tissot's signature tight acids and the 'salty tang' voile influence. Tissot makes many different single-site Vin Jaunes and this is the Grand Cru. In Château Chalon terms it's very concentrated, very rich and opulent. Miani's Friulano displays remarkable depth of flavour and texture coupled with uncommon concentration and richness, and although they are luscious to the point of decadence, they are never heavy or unbalanced. Pontoni's are the richest, deepest Friulano wines you will ever taste; offering an uncommonly complex and plush tasting experience that never becomes tiring. The vineyards in Buttrio tend to give a richer, fruitier wine, and so the Friulano Buri can offer notes of peach and pineapple to show a softer character (also true of the red wines made from grapes grown around Buttrio). There is always a lovely minerality that shines through, even when the wines are young. By contrast, the Filip is usually more austere and slower to develop, typically revealing aromas and flavours of orchard fruits such as pear and apple, and it is always the more mineral of the two wines. Be aware that both Friulanos tend to be rather closed when young and really start to blossom about six years after the vintage, or even later.

TERROIR AL LIMIT is a fascinating project that was founded in 2001 by German wine- and food-lover, Dominik Huber, and South African maverick and wine-making genius, Eben Sadie. Their aim was to bring wines of elegance and finesse to the notoriously stark and difficult terrain of Priorat, working on a 'parcel' or 'cru' concept similar to Burgundy, Piedmont and the Mosel.

This wine, the Torroja Vi de Vila, is made in the same vein as a village wine in Burgundy. It's a wonderfully silky blend of Garnacha and Carinyena with a textural richness that feels gentle, natural and unforced. Cherry skins, poached plums, chinese five spice and black raspberry feature prominently as the wine glides effortlessly across the palate.

Along with the other 'G' man (Angelo Gaja, of course) Bruno Giacosa is the greatest figure of Barolo/Barbaresco. While Gaja did much of the region's promotional legwork, the more intense and introverted Giacosa concentrated on producing great wine with such consistency and clarity of personality, that Barolo and Barbaresco wines eventually forced their way into the big league of world reds; a status formerly occupied almost entirely by Bordeaux and Burgundy.

While perhaps known more as a Barbaresco producer, for the radiant and intense wines from crus Asili and Rabaja, Bruno Giacosa is now recognised as much for the titanic Barolo's of the great (monopole) cru Falletto in Serralunga. The great man died recently, at the start of 2018, but leaves behind a legacy of fabled vineyards and a very clear winemaking style in the hands of daughter Bruna and longtime cellar master Dante Scaglione.

Dits del Terra gets its name from the gnarled, nearly 90 year old vines of Carinyena that look like ancient fingers clawing into the schist soils of this site near the village of Torroja. This is one of the first vineyards that Dominik and his then partner, Eben Sadie, acquired when they started making wine together in the Priorat. Being south-facing, it is also fascinating to taste it along side L'Arbossar, its nearby, north-facing twin.

VOUETTE ET SORBEE

Bertrand Gautherot's parcels (Vouette, Sorbée, and Biaunes) consist of Kimmeridgian marls capped by Portlandian limestone, which have more in common with the soils of Chablis' premier and grand cru vineyards than they do with their counterparts in the Marne.

Through fastidious work both in the vineyard and in the cellar, Vouette et Sorbée produces Champagnes faithful to the character of their terroir and vintage. Gautherot farms the estate biodynamically; its vineyards have been Demeter certified since 1998

Textures is Gautherot's newest cuvée, a rare, 100% Pinot Blanc Champagne crafted from vines in the Fonnet vineyard. Gautherot describes it as the one that is the easiest to drink young. There is more texture and fruit, hence, an easy-going refreshment!

50% riesling, 25% traminer, 15% garganega, the rest, chardonnay and viognier. It's picked separately, with a percentage of the riesling whole bunch, left as is for about two weeks to ferment and macerate. Traminer also spends time on skins. "Thrown together, and this is what I ended up with", flippant Dan! Seems like there's quite a bit of consideration here, certainly shows some winemaking nous.

Lovely wine. Bright, fresh, textural, dialling in a good deal of complexity set to stacks of vitality. It opens up beautifully in the glass too. Perfume of nashi pear, Real Lemonade, ginger, with the palate on a similar track. Medium weight, fine chalkiness, squishy citrus finish. This is much more about texture than the full assault of structural orange wine, though it would loosely fall under that umbrella term. Like.

A surprising wine, a blessing... 40% macabeu, 30% grenache gris and 30% carignan blanc, matured for 12 months in older oak barrels, but naturally-fermented on skins for a period of time. Bottled with higher CO2 and very low SO2. The very old farm (11th century) farms a raft of popular Languedoc grape varieties and turned to organic viticulture in the 1990s.

Biodynamic principles since 1984.

I first came across this wine when I was working in the Seychelles in 5-star resort Constance Lemuria in 2014 and it was vintage 1978. It was one of the most unforgettable wines I have ever encountered. Made by the leading proponent of biodynamic viticulture in France, Coulee de Serrant is not just a wine that you drink, it is the language of human and nature working together expressing each year's vintage like history that you can actually taste.

A non-interventionist approach, made from 100% Chenin Blanc, it is known for its wonderful aromatic qualities and unimitable acidity.

The complexities of this wine can take you on quite a journey. You can even enjoy it over the course of a few days as Joly insists that his wines can evolve to new levels with time. I see these wines as intellectual and full of poise, a treat reserved to those who want to engage and contemplate beyond the simple pleasures...

Tasting notes can go from honey and fruit like candied orange, quince, and apricot to nutty almond paste, to slight oxidative characters, a whiff of saltiness like sea air or some Fino sherry edge to some round waxy cheesy notes.

2016 SALVO FOTI 'VIGNERI AURORA' ETNA VINO BIANCO 99
Sicily, Italy

Salvo Foti, the King of the Volcano, crafts natural and organic native wines from Sicily's Mount Etna region and is regarded as one of Italy's top winegrowers.

The Aurora is a stunning expression of Carricante, a gorgeous white with elegance and style.

There are delicate details that, perhaps, will remind you of top Premier Cru white Burgundy but it still shows the pure terroir of Etna with exotic spice, flinty minerality and a lovely peachy, tropical and kumquat notes as well as soft butterscotch, salty chalk and lemon marmalade.

2016 ENVINATE 'BENJE BLANCO' 65
Tenerife, Canary Islands

Sourced from several old vines of untrained parcels of Listan Blanco (Palomino), Benje Blanco is a high-toned white wine, showing its volcanic terruno with smokey notes wrapped around the orchard fruit core, braced by Atlantic-infused high elevation acidity.

ASTONISHING WHITE WINES FROM STUNNING HUNGARY

MORIC HIDDEN TREASURES PROJECT 1, 2 AND 3

Hidden Treasures is a pan-Pannonian project by Roland Velich of Moric. It sees the Burgenland Blaufrankisch legend collaborating with his lesser-known but super talented winemaking brethren across the plain in Hungary. Together they elevate great indigenous varieties to wines worthy of their ancient promise. Honey, Spice and orchard fruits have a saline edge and an intriguing finish reminiscent of mead.

2016 MORIC PROJECT NO.1 110
Tokaj

Brought to you by Roland and Attila Hommona from the famed Tokaj region. 100% Furmint from a steep site. The wines are raised in a mixture of old cask and stainless steel. It has aromas of honey and beeswax, pollen and rosy apples. The palate moves into a sweet lime and white stone fruit zone, leaving a sense of honeysuckle nectar on the finish.

2017 MORIC PROJECT NO.2 110
Somlo

Brought to you and Roland and Tamas Kis from Somlo. A dry white wines made from the trio of grapes Harslevelu, Furmint and Welschriesling. Roland says "it's classic Somlo", though we suppose not many of us are familiar with the concept. The nose and palate are not so much driven by fruit and flowers so much as spice and savoury notes

2017 MORIC PROJECT NO.3 85
Balaton

Brought to you by Roland and Villa Tolnay of Balaton. It is a blend of Riesling and Furmint. It's grown on the volcanic hills around Lake Balaton, which feature basalt at the top of the slope and limestone lower down. This has a very fresh, clean, floral nose reminiscent that puts you in mind of Northern Italy. Orchard and white stone fruits have depth and clarity, and there is a nice touch of grip to go with the cleansing acidity.

The pithos is pretty special in the way that it is vinified using terracotta amphorae and maceration on skins with indigenous yeasts. The resulting wine is an intriguing yellow orange-ish with some apricot and candied orange peel, kumquat jam, with a soft structure throwing lots of exotic scents. Even if it is hot country in Sicily, these wines are made with a gentle hand and the freshness is reminiscent of cool climate wines with crunch and reticent austerity. Cos has shown Sicily's ability to make fine and elegant wines despite its previous reputation for heavy, powerful wines. 100% Grecanico!

DOMAINE PRIEURE ROCH*PURE AND AUTHENTIC EXPRESSION OF PINOT NOIR

2015 PRIEURE ROCH Ladoix Serrigny 'Le Cloud'	260	Domaine Prieure Roch was born in 1988 to Henry-Frédéric Roch, also co-director of the Domaine de la Romanée-Conti. It situated at the outskirts of the village of Nuits St Georges at the centre of the northern part of cote d'or covering 14 hectares and producing 15 labels, including grand crus Chambertin Clos de Beze and Clos de Vougeot. Roch's wines are marked by amazing aromatics and beauty approaching possibly even a form of art. The senses are all intrigued – an alluring swirl in the glass, a bright crimson red, a feeling of romance builds as the nose throws some licorice and cherries and the palate surprises with ethereal intensity. the uniqueness of these wines is reflected in front labels where Egyptian hieroglyphic symbols are interpreted on the whole as viticulture. THE VINES AND THE WINES The vines are farmed organically and are bio certified. The grapes are vinified with all their stems in wooden vats and traditional foot stomping. The wines are kept for a maximum of 24 months in barrel because there is not the space for a third vintage in the cellar, but Henri-Frédéric Roch and his right-hand man, Yannick Champ, are evidently tempted to age the wines an extra year.

Cuis, France

The Cuvée No. 741, based on the 2013 vintage, is quite pretty. Complex, nuanced and multi-dimensional in feel, the 741 is beautifully layered in the glass. In this release, the Pinot Noir is especially expressive and gives the wine a measure of textural breadth that is unusual for a young 700-series Champagne. Soft contours and a host of toasty, resonant flavors give the 741 its distinctive feel. Best of all, the 741 will drink well upon release. Disgorged June 2017. Dosage is 2.5grams per liter.
